Challenges in implementation of ADR System in Subordinate Courts

07 September, 2018 National Judicial Academy, Bhopal

ANIL XAVIER President

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) is a procedural method by which parties would like to resolve their disputes outside the court

The Courts normally deal with ADR in two circumstances:

- In regular suits
  - Section 89 of the Code of Civil Procedure (CPC)
  - Section 8 of the Arbitration & Conciliation Act, 1996 (ACA)

The Courts normally deal with ADR in two circumstances:

Petitions filed under the ACA

Section 9, 27, 29, 34, 36 and 37 of the ACA

Blending judicial and non-judicial dispute resolution mechanism

As per Section 89;

Where it appears to the Court that there exist elements of a settlement which may be acceptable to the parties, the Court shall formulate the terms of settlement and refer the same for:

(a) Arbitration; (b) Conciliation; (c) Judicial Settlement including settlement through Lok Adalat; or (d) Mediation

 After the completion of pleadings, a hearing to consider recourse to ADR process under Section 89 CPC is mandatory, but actual reference to an ADR process in all cases is not mandatory

2. Where the case falls under an excluded category there need not be reference to ADR process. In all other case reference to ADR process is a must

3. Where the case is unsuited for reference to any of the ADR process, the court will have to briefly record the reasons for not resorting to any of the settlement procedures

4. If a matter has to be referred to arbitration, it has to be by means of a joint memo or joint application or a joint affidavit of the parties before the court, or by record of the agreement by the court in the order-sheet signed by the parties

5. There can be a valid reference to conciliation only if both parties to the dispute agree

 If the reference is to arbitration or conciliation, the court has to record that the reference is by mutual consent. Nothing further need be stated in the order sheet

7. If the parties are not agreeable for either arbitration or conciliation the court has to consider which of the other three ADR processes (Lok Adalat, Mediation and Judicial Settlement) is suitable and appropriate and refer the parties to such ADR process

8. In all these four ADR processes, the case does not go out of the stream of the court when a reference is made. The court retains its control and jurisdiction over the case, even when the matter is before the ADR forum

9. If the Judge in charge of the case assists the parties and if settlement negotiations fail, he should not deal with the adjudication of the matter, to avoid apprehensions of bias and prejudice

When a matter is brought before the Court by a party, ignoring an arbitration clause

As per Section 8;

A judicial authority, before which an action is brought in a matter which is the subject of an arbitration agreement shall, if a party to the arbitration agreement or any person claiming through or under him, so applies not later than the date of submitting his first statement on the substance of the dispute, then, notwithstanding any judgment, decree or order of the Supreme Court or any court, refer the parties to arbitration unless it finds that prima facie no valid arbitration agreement exists

K.K. Modi Vs. K.M Modi – 1998 (3) SCC 573

- (i) The agreement must comply with the requirements as stated under Section 7 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996
- (ii) The agreement must also be legally valid in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872

Magma Leasing & Finance Limited & Another Vs. Potluri Madhavilata & Another – 2009 (10) SCC 103

Section 8 is in the form of legislative command to the court and once the pre-requisite conditions are satisfied, the court must refer the parties to arbitration – no option is left to the court and the court has to refer the parties to arbitration

Section 5 specifically provide that notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, in matter governed by this Part, no judicial authority shall intervene except where so provided in this Part

ARBITRATION & CONCILIATION ACT

- Law Commission of India brought out Report No. 246 on 05 August 2014
- The Arbitration & Conciliation (Amendment) Ordinance
   2015, came into force on 23 October 2015
- Arbitration & Conciliation (Amendment) Act 2015 was passed, assent received on 31/12/2015 – deemed to have come into force on 23 October 2015

Courts get jurisdiction to interfere in an Arbitration process under Section 9, when a party approaches for interim protection

Under the amended law, where, before the commencement of the arbitral proceedings, a Court passes an order for any interim measure of protection, the arbitral proceedings shall be commenced within a period of ninety days from the date of such order or within such further time as the Court may determine.

Similarly, once the arbitral tribunal has been constituted, the Court shall not entertain an application, unless the Court finds that circumstances exists which may not render remedy provided under Section 17 efficacious

Section 17 ACA empowers the Arbitral Tribunal with the same powers of court as under Section 9

Any order issued by the arbitral tribunal under this section shall be deemed to be an order of the Court for all purposes and shall be enforceable under the CPC, in the same manner as if it were an order of the Court

Alka Chandewar Vs. Shamshul Ishrar Khan – CDJ 2017 SC 792

The court can take contempt either under the provisions of the Contempt of Courts Act or under the provisions of Order 39 Rule 2A CPC, against a person who violates the interim order passed by an Arbitral Tribunal, on application by the Arbitral Tribunal

The arbitral tribunal, or a party with the approval of the arbitral tribunal, applies to the court for assistance in taking evidence

The Court may, issue the same processes to witnesses, ordering that the evidence be provided directly to the arbitral tribunal.

New Section 29A is inserted – prescribes a time frame of 12 months or an extended period of 18 months for the making of an award, from the date the arbitral tribunal enters upon the reference

The extension of the period may be on the application of any of the parties and may be granted only for sufficient cause and on such terms and conditions as may be imposed by the Court.

Application shall be disposed of by the Court as expeditiously as possible – within a period of sixty days from the date of service of notice on the opposite party.

Application for setting aside may not be made after three months have elapsed from the date on which the party making that application had received the arbitral award

Application shall be filed by a party only after issuing a prior notice to the other party

An arbitral award may be set aside by the court only on 7 grounds:

- 1. Party was under some incapacity
- 2. Arbitration agreement is not valid
- 3. Party was not given proper notice

An arbitral award may be set aside by the court only on 7 grounds:

- 4. Award deals with a dispute not contemplated by or on matters beyond the scope of the submission
- 5. Arbitral tribunal or arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement

An arbitral award may be set aside by the court only on 7 grounds:

- 6. Subject-matter of the dispute is not capable of settlement by arbitration
- 7. Award is in conflict with the public policy of India

Conflict with public policy of India:

- Making of the award was affected by fraud or corruption
- Contravention with the fundamental policy of Indian law
- Conflict with the most basic notions of morality or justice
- Patent illegality appearing on the face of the award
